

Nicole Braccio, PharmD
Speaker Biography

Nicole Braccio serves as Policy Director for National Patient Advocate Foundation (NPAF) representing patients and families coping with complex, chronic health conditions.

Nicole identifies persisting care delivery challenges and oversees the development of person-centered policy solutions that prioritize people's preferences and goals. Nicole is passionate about advancing equitable access to health insurance coverage, treatments, and services as well as minimizing the financial toxicity that nearly all patients experience.

Prior to NPAF, Nicole supported clients at Avalere Health, an advisory services firm, with market access, product commercialization and reimbursement strategy, focusing on access to innovative treatments across all insurance markets. Prior to that, Nicole served as a pharmacy manager for a community pharmacy within Target Corp and has experience in a variety of clinical practice settings including inpatient, ambulatory, and community care for underserved populations with chronic conditions.

Nicole is a registered pharmacist in New York. She earned her Doctor of Pharmacy degree from the Ernest Mario School of Pharmacy at Rutgers University.
